REIGN OF TERROR.

Negro Threatens to Shoot and Almost Broke Up Lawn Party. Henry Puryear, a young negro, who was arrested by Constable Samuels and given a hearing before Magistrate, Thomas, of Henrico county, vesterday on the charge of using profane language on the public highway, was fined $5 and costs, and put under a hond of $160 to keep the peace for six months.

Puryear went to a fashionable lawn party near Twenty-ninth and Q Streets on Monday night and imbibed freely of old red eye. When this commenced to take effect he forthwith sought to Gran out the place. He was ordered by the manager of the floor to get off, where upon he asserted that he would give shim, at this juncture the women took refuge from the place.

When ordered to leave Henry bestowed many ugly epithets upon the proprietor, who went for an officer, but when he returned the negro had left the place and requested him to come outside and settle the matter, again using vile language.

May Harbor Fever Germs.

MANY COWS DRINK THERE

Families in the Neighborhood Drink the Polluted Milk.

In the opinion of physicians death lurks in the pond of stagnant water, which for several months has stood at the corner of Main Street and the Boulevard. A number of cases of typhold fever is be leved to have been caused by it.

The water is about two and a half feet in depth all over the area, and the rank nant water, makes the place a harbor for mosquitoes and any other germs pe morning not less than twenty cows were drinking the stagnant water, and doubt-less many people are taking milk from these cows. In fact, it is said that a gontleman, who lives near this place, has been supplied with milk from cows of his family lies ill with typhoid fover. It is thought that the disease was contracted from the milk used in the house. The boy tending the cows was questioned yesterday concerning watering them, and acknowledged that they were driven to this place to water daily. When asked who owned the cows, the boy stated that the herd he was driving belonged to different individuals, thus it can be seen that each of these twenty or more families is using milk from cows which are drinking water contaminated in the worst possible manner. A sample of this water of germs. The water even in small quan-titles is of a dirty brown color, and thick with organic matter.

THEATRES

Moving pictures may not, in the estimation of some, fossess sufficient motion to make them what might be called a live entertainment, but those seen at the Academy yesterday were certainly realistic and life-like enough to make the speciators forget that the scenes were only upon the canvas. No better moving pictures have ever been seen in Richmond, and no more interesting subjects have ever been seen in Richmond, and no more interesting subjects have ever been thrown from the films of any machine operated here. It is the efforts of a life-saving crew to rescue those on a storm-beaten ship, were intensely insteresting, the actual scene, seeming to occur before the audience. Another series of stirring views were those representing scenes in an apartment house. Fire is discovered in one of the apartments, the janitor sends in the alarm, and in a fow moments the firemen arrive on the scene and the work of fighting the flames and rescuing the inmates of the building is carried on speedly, but systematically. An exciting, as we I as a laughable scene, is that showing a coasting party. At times the effect produced is that the coasters, in their mad rush down the side, are going to tumble headlong into the orchestra pit. Buster Brown and his dog "Tigg" also furnish a good deal of emusement. One picture shows a practical joke that Buster plays upon his father. The next picture shows the morning meal, and when Buster makes his appearance at the table his mother, considerately, places a pillow in his chair. Buster, however, eats his breakfast standing.

The most interesting pictures of all were those illustrating incidents in the life of Marie Antoinette. The scenes at the French Court were beautiful. These were fol owed by the storming of the Bastile, a scene full of color and life. The series ended with the rather gruesome picture of Marie Antoinette upon the scasfiod, and there is a shudder among the audience when the guillotine does its deadly work. The pictures are well worth witnessing troday.

Last of Bijou Week.

The last performances of the Bijou offering this week will be given to-day—matineo and night. The play is one which interests all who see it, and is invariably received with rounds of applause. Robin, the walf, is unanimously tormed "real cute and pretty" by the ladies who flock to the house. The levee scene and the bank robbery are well worth seeing.

OVER EMBANKMENT.

Telegraph Operator, Who Lost His Wife, Hero of Wreck.

(By Associated Press.)
CHARLOTTE, N. C., September 2.—The wrecked train was running about forty miles an hour when the trestle, which is about three hundred feet long, span-is about three hundred feet long, spanning a meadow near the Catawba River, gave way. The engine and some of the cars passed over, but were drawn backward into the abyss and upon the other cars, a light engine and caboose, piling in on top of the train of wreckage before it could be flagged.

Gaston Mears, the engineer of the passenger train, escaped with some bruised and a painful scalp wound. How he escaped death, is beyond his own or any one else's comprehension. He said that he was driving at the rate of forty miles an hour as he crossed the bridge. Just before the engine had swept entirely clear of the structure, he felt it sinking, but the impetus carried the ongine and but the impetus carried the engine and all the cars across, except the first-class passenger car and the Pullman. When the bridge collapsed, the engine and cars were swerved from their course to the right, tearing the rail loose from its fastenings and hurling the entire train upside down over an embankment to the meadow, about thirty feet below.

Freight Plunges.

Freight Plunges.
When the train went crashing over the embankment, every light went out, passengers were thrown headlong against the sides of the coaches, bleeding and bruised. Mrs. Black, sitting with her husband, gave a short cry, and when he managed to strike a match and find her body, he discovered that she was dead, her neck having been broken. She was the only passenger killed, or even hurt seriously.

seriously.

As the scrambling and shouting went on in the dark, above the noises, a brakeman, with his head half way out of a window, was heard to shout: of a window, was heard to shout:
"My God, the freight train is coming of a window, was near to succeed on the property of the freight train is coming upon us."

In less than a minute the freight, which had left Monroe fifteen minutes behind the passenger, came whizzing along the tracks, struck the open space where the bridge had fallen and plunged its way through the passenger cars. The woman whose identity could not be discovered, then mat her death, the freight engine having crashed through the side of that passenger car in which she was. Her body was crushed into a shapeless mass. The engineer of the freight train must have met his death instantly. He was found in the cab of the overturned engine, with his head crushed, but few brilses upon his body. When his body, was dug out of the debit a this morning, his watch, was still running on time, His fireman escaped with a few minor injuries.

Evidence of Dirty Work.

George S. Fitzwater, chief detective of the Senboard Air Line, arrived on the scene early in the morning and took charge of the situation until organized help arrived. He said this afternoon that he had found some spices and poiss and two angle bars, which had been removed from the track with claw bars, and he sald he was confident that dirty work had been done. Mr. Fitzwater sent a telegram to President E. Berkley, at Atlanta, telling him that he had discovered evidence of malice in this work, and expressed his belief, that some one had disconnected the joints in the lower half of the bridge.

trates the necessity of proper feeding for the man who depends on his brain for a living.

"Up to three years ago," writes this gentleman, "I was a heavy coffee drinker, I knew it was injuring me. It directly affected my stomach and I was threatened with ohronic dyspepsia. It was then that my wife persuaded me to try Positum Food Coffee. The good results were so marked that I cannot say too much for it. When first prepared I did not fancy it, but inquiry developed the fact that cook had not bolled it long enough, so next time I had it properly made and was charmed with it. Since that time coffee has had no place on my table save for guests. Both myself and wife are fond of this new cup which 'cheers, but does not inebriate' in a much truer and filter sense than coffee. My stomach has resumed its normal functions and I am now well and strong again mentally and physically.

"I am confident that coffee is a poison to many stomachs, and I have recommended Postum with great success to a number of my friends who were suffering from the use of coffee." Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Look in each pks. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

A special meeting of the Virginia Boat Club will be held at the boat-house this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The question of ordering new boats for next season will be considered.
